

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

An indirect semiconductor laser having an indirect semiconductor used as the material of an active layer is used, instead of a conventional direct semiconductor laser so as to obtain a reproducing optical source, in order to reduce optical interference noise of the laser caused in the optical head in an optical disc apparatus, and to eliminate the necessity of high frequency wave convolution, thereby it is possible to reduce the cost.